OUR SOCIETY WILL SPONSOR a Beginner's Work Session at the April 8, 1976 meeting at Jackson-Madison County Library, time 6:45-8:30 p.m. There is no charge for this meeting and it is open to all beginning genealogists. Discussion leader will be Mrs. Charles R. Barham of Memphis, president of the Tennessee Genealogical Society.

We have had written requests for records from the following West Tennessee counties: Dyer, Fayette, Gibson, Henry Hardeman, and Weakley. Perhaps you, our readers, can supply us with such information to be published in future issues. This is your Quarterly and we can only publish such information as you make available to be shared. We will try to give priority in the near future to the above counties.

"RIVERSIDE CEMETERY INSCRIPTIONS" which contains 130 pages of tombstone inscriptions from Jackson's oldest cemetery has recently been published by our Society as its Bicentennial project. It is completely indexed. Cost is $6.00 postpaid. To order, send check to Mid-West Tennessee Genealogical Society, P. O. Box 3343, Jackson, Tn. 38301 or call Mrs. James Phillips, 901-423-3590.

OLD SALEM CAMPGROUND CEMETERY just east of Jackson City Limits about 1 mile on Bendix Drive (Cotton Grove Rd.) is being restored through the efforts the Jackson Altrusa Club as their Bicentennial project. It contains the resting places of a number of prominent early Madison County residents including Congressman, Adam Huntsman and his three wives, members of the Brown, Smith, Greer families and others. Stones indicate earliest burials were in the 1830's. The cemetery was completely overgrown with honeysuckle and Virginia creeper and clearing is a major project. County work crews are now at work. The Altrusans plan to fence the area once it is cleared. The total area comprises about 60 acres. Our Society has made a modest donation to this project.

OUR THANKS TO Mr. Ed Blackmon, Mrs. Guy McMaster, the Rev. Elton Watlington, Charles Fonville, Mrs. C. C. James, Mrs. J. R. Roden, T. P. Hughes, Jr. Mrs. D. E. West, Mrs. Floyd Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nolen for their contributions to this issue. Our thanks also to Mrs. James Phillips for her assistance with typing.

SOME BACK ISSUES OF FAMILY FINDINGS are available. Most copies are $1.50 each. The Special Sesquicentennial Issue featuring Hardeman County from July 1973 is available at $3.00. Our circulation Editor, Mrs. Ed Martin, has available copies of the Table of Contents from all past issues which are still available for sale. Copies of the Table of Contents (complete) are $1.00. A HISTORY OF ASBURY UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, RIPLEY, TENN.
Prepared by: Joe T. Watlington. Contributed by: The Rev. Elton Watlington

Asbury United Methodist Church is a stately structure located in Lauderdale County, Tenn. It borders the old Ashport-Durhamville Road about one mile south of its junction with Asbury Road and two miles west of Ripley, the County Seat town. The red brick building with white trim is surrounded by storm battered oaks, broad limbed pines and shapely cedars. The white slender steeple over the sanctuary overlooks the Asbury Church Cemetery, where tombstones from as far back as 1867 are irregularly spaced on the well kept lawn.

The community in which it is located is spread over several ridges. Most of the houses are found bordering the main roads. Approximately eighty families live in this area, the closest other rural communities being Arp, Lightfoot and Glimp. None of these communities are very big because they are all so close to Ripley, but they all played a very important role in the history of West Tennessee Methodism as well as the history of Lauderdale County.

Key Corner was the first white settlement in the county. It was settled by Henry Rutherford's family, his brother, and a man called Crenshaw, from North Carolina. Others were attracted to the area and soon, surely by the mid 1820's, Key Corner was an established town. Durhamville has been known as a town since before 1828 (a postoffice was established there in that year). Fulton, at the confluence of the Hatchie and Mississippi River, is known to be the oldest town in the county.

Lauderdale County was formed November 24, 1835 from parts of Tipton, Dyer and Haywood Counties, with the Forked Deer River as a northern boundary and the Hatchie River as the southern boundary. As early as 1819 explorers had established settlements in this territory but not until the late 1820's were towns established. Ripley, as many other county seat towns of West Tennessee, was established and laid out by commissioners selected by the Legislature. On February 24, 1836, the Commissioners bought some land from Thomas Brown for $50 and established the city of Ripley as the county seat. It was named after General E. W. Ripley of the War of 1812.

At this time (1836) settlers had already thinly settled the area, and many families who later became leaders of the county bought land surrounding Ripley. Some of these families were the Wardlaws, the Kellers, and others. During the years following Ripley's establishment more and more people moved into the county. The rich soil and cheap and abundant land attracted families not only from other counties of Tennessee but from other states such as North Carolina, South Carolina, Mississippi and Kentucky.

With this increase in population the need for roads, industry, stores and churches increased. Many roads, cotton gins, grain mills, saw mills and stores were established in these early days, especially at crossroads and in heavily-traveled areas. Churches were also established in these convenient locations. In Lauderdale County there were several different religious groups that established churches. The Baptists, Methodists and Cumberland Presbyterians were all present and had preachers and lay leaders among the settlers.

When a family moved into a newly settled area they either participated in meetings that were already being held by circuit riders and laymen in the area, or were visited by a circuit rider who offered to start a meeting at their home. The sermons were often of the "fire and brimstone" type, but were very effective on these rural, mostly uneducated folks. One of the ways churches were started was to hold brush arbor revivals, which were held in the summer after the corn was laid by. These revivals would last for days and many people would be converted.

Early Methodism in the Asbury Church area started in this way. The churches at Durhamville (previously known as Turner's Chapel and now called St. Paul's) in 1829 and at Bethlehem (located east of Henning) in 1830 were both started because of strong Methodist families. Other churches were established in these years but consisted mainly of preaching places the circuit riders would visit once a month in the summer and sometimes only once or twice all winter, weather permitting.

In the summer of 1839 a "camp meeting" was held by the Methodists at Hurricane Hill, near Ripley. It consisted of a large "bush arbor" where people from all over the area would come and stay in tents or wagons near the revival until it was over. No one remembers exactly how long these meetings lasted, but they presume ten days.

This "camp meeting" must have really influenced the ministers who attended for in 1840 a special Ripley Circuit was established by the Annual Conference and Thomas J. Lowrie was appointed as the preacher.

These camp meetings were held every summer til the mid 1850's when interest seems to have died down. During these fifteen years of existence much good was done. Many leaders of the Methodist Church were converted there; one of them being John Thomas (J. Tom) Williams who later helped hold similar meetings on his farm.

The traditional date for the founding of Asbury United Methodist Church is given as 1839. This is based purely on the supposition that the Hurricane Hill revivals were meaningful enough to lead people of the Asbury community to establish the SMYRNA M. E. Church, South. By this year (1839) a great many of the later members and trustees of the Smyrna M. E. Church had already located in the area. Hiram C. Keller was active in county affairs in 1836. Joseph Wardlaw's daughter is known to have been the first white child born in Ripley (1837). Abel H. Pope, a neighbor of the church but not a trustee, helped lay out the town of Ripley in 1836. Thus, a congregation could have been started near the present day Asbury United Methodist Church in 1839.

More proof of this fact is the presence of another organized church located as neighbor to the Smyrna M.E. Church. The Hermon Baptist Church (probably for Mt. Hermon of the Old Testament--Deut. 3:8; Josh. 11:17) is the first Baptist church known to have existed in the Asbury region. It was located about one half mile south of the present Asbury United Methodist Church building. Beside the log meeting house was a small cemetery which until today can be found, unkept, among a cedar grove. Little is known of this church other than verbal accounts of meetings held there. One such account is that Mayo Gaines who later settled in the area, preached in the meeting house. The Minutes of July, 1882, of the Big Hatchie Association show that the Hermon Church was dropped from the list of churches because it had been inactive for several years. The last pastor was G. J. Bibb and a previous pastor is reported to have been Rev. Bowie.

The cemetery at Hermon Church was used at least until 1862, when Martha McQuire, daughter of J. M. and Sarah McQuire, was buried there. Today the hill is covered with a thick layer of green-leaved vegetation with huge cedar trees found here and there.

The down fall of the Hermon Church seems to coincide with the establishment in Ripley of the First Baptist Church which was organized in 1852. Further study might show a closer relationship between these two churches.

The importance of Hermon Church, in relation to the present-day Asbury United Methodist Church is that along with this Baptist Church at Asbury, a congregation of Methodists was organized. The Trustees of the "Smyrna M.E. Church" applied, as an organized and recognized church, for some land in 1843.

The request of this tract of land in Range 3, Section 9 (about 2.3 miles directly West of the present site) may indicate that such congregation was then occupying the tract requested, or some part of it. At any rate, it does indicate that there was a congregation recognized by that name and some of the Trustees of that congregation were the same who in later years served the Asbury congregation, which in 1854 was given a part of the land which it and the adjoining cemetery now occupy.

The Smyrna Church changed names before 1854 when Joseph Wardlaw gave a 22 x 22 pole lot to the Methodist Church "now known as the name of Asberry". The inclusion of the word NOW led us to believe it had recently changed names. More proof of the change in name would be to compare the list of Trustees of both churches, one found on the 1843 document for the SMYRNA M.E. Church and the other found on the 1854 document for the "Asberry" Church.

Of the seven Trustees on the first document, four names remained unchanged in the second document. Among them were two men who played important parts in the founding of Ripley: Joseph Wardlaw, who later donated land for the First Methodist Church in Ripley, and H. C. Keller, who bought Lot #1 in the town of Ripley.

At the beginning, I feel quite certain, the church met in homes and maybe in the old Hermon (Baptist) Church building. As the congregation grew, and people became more firmly settled in the area, a lot was chosen on a hillside beside the Ashport-Durhamville Road.

In 1843 the "trustees of the M. E. Church called Smyrna" entered their request and paid 12.5 cents an acre for a 9 120/160 acre lot, an abandoned area between two large land grants. For some reason this request wasn't granted til 1854. Andrew Johnson, then governor of Tennessee, signed it. By then the congregation had already built a log meeting house on a 22 x 22 pole tract of land Joseph Wardlaw had given the "M. E. Church, South, now called Asberry". In 1863 the M. E. Church, South, registered this 1854 deed at the County Register. By 1889 the need for a larger tract of land was pressing and the Asbury Methodist Church bought 3.5 acres on March, 1889 from Thomas J. Posey and wife for $30. This purchase allowed the church to expand its cemetery and also to construct a new building.

The need for a cemetery at Asbury Methodist Church came about with the downfall of the Hermon Church. When the Church quit operating, families began burying their dead near the Asbury Church. J.M. and Sallie McQuire buried at least one child in the Hermon Cemetery in 1862 and their next child was buried in the Asbury Cemetery in 1867; which seems to prove that the Asbury Cemetery was used after the Hermon Cemetery was closed. Houston Craig's wife is supposed to be the first person buried at Asbury, but the date of her death seems to have disappeared along with her tombstone.

OLD SHILOH CEMETERY located Route 3, Humboldt, Tn. just off Warren Road near the home of Edgar Hayes. Copied Nov 1973 and revisited in Mar 1974 for second attempt to locate all graves. Copied by Charles D. Fonville, Box 35, Humboldt, Tn.

This cemetery was located in one of Gibson County's first settlements, Shiloh. One of Gibson County's first churches, the New Shiloh Presbyterian Church was located in this now extinct community. The cemetery is in a very overgrown condition and it is impossible to be sure that all the graves have been copied. There are numerous graves without markers and a few with metal markers that can no longer be read. One of Gibson County's first educators is buried in this cemetery; Nathan Henry Dow ran the first school in the vicinity of Humboldt.

This letter dated at Shiloh April 26th 1864 is addressed to Miss Margaret Murrell, Jackson, Tenn. It was written by the Rev. E. S. Campbell who was later married to Miss Murrell. The now extinct village of Shiloh was located just northeast of the present site of Humboldt, in Gibson Co. Tenn. All that remains of this chapter of Gibson Co. is the Old Shiloh Cemetery where E. S. and Margaret Murrell Campbell lie buried. This very important and historic burial ground is desperate need of care as it is completely overgrown. (Letter copied by Charles E. Fonville, Humboldt, Tn.)

Shiloh April 26th 1864

My Dear Loved one

I received with great pleasure your kind letter of the 19th Inst. Words cannot express the pleasure it offered me especially that you were still improving in health, God grant you may be entirely restored. You know not how heavily time hangs on me while absent from the dear one whose image is ever before my mind and of whom I delight to think by day and by night. Nothing but stern necessity has kept me from seeing you ere this. I have been very much pressed and perplexed with business ever since my return home so much so that I have hardly had time to see after my little farming operations. Tomorrow I expect three ladies here all wanting teeth and I shall be worked down and not be able to satisfy all at that, I have not had a leisure day since my return home Friday I have to go to assist Bro Hall with a sacramental meeting about 30 miles from here and shall not be back before Monday night. Next week say Thursday or Friday I hope to see you & talk face to face of many things that I cannot write. I long for the day when we shall no longer be forced to endure this painful absence, but walk the path of life together mutually encouraging & strengthening each other in every duty. Oh how pleasant after the toil & perplexity of the business of the day to have a dear Friend on whose bosom to rest the weary head & have all cares and troubles vanished from the mind and enjoy the pleasures of a home made happy by the smiles of those we love.

Abe is well & getting on finely I never saw any one improve as fast as he has he is looking now like himself & feels as free as a bird let out of a cage I am letting him run pretty much at large for the present after a little I design putting him at some employment He is as merry as a Lark I think Aunt Margarets eye will be needed soon.

Dearest Love what say you to coming over to Gibson shortly & let us all be together in our country home. Say week after next let this matter be consummated. I see no good reason for delaying. If agreeable to you say the 11 or 12th of May. I hope to see you next week

I have written this very hastily after all the family have gone to bed & I am myself much wearied having been hard at work all day so I must say good night Take care of yourself. May the blessing of heaven be with you now & ever is the prayer of your devotedly

Erasmus

Let me hear from you again as soon as practicable

BROWN'S CEMETERY

This cemetery is located in Madison County, Tn. about seven and one-half miles N. E. of Jackson on the McLeary Rd. and Highway 20. The cemetery is immediately behind Browns United Methodist Church, but was established prior to the church. It is still used for burials and is in excellent condition. This record was taken in May 1975, and contributed by Elizabeth Greer McMaster. Church members assisted with the record taking. Typing was done by Mrs. Wilma Clyce, compliments of Mr. Ed Blackmon.

The name Browns was probably taken from the family of Adam Brown who bought land here on December 2, 1824. He built his home with a very large room where "religious meetings" of the good Methodist of the community were held until a church could be built. A church was built in 1835 on land deeded to the church by Adam Brown.
